

How District Level Can Support Students

Students, Parents and Community Members have been provided with School Readiness activities to engage in to reinforce the instructional opportunities that students experience during the school year. This document provides an overview of the teacher, administrator and central office roles in supporting students.

Teachers

Explore professional development opportunities for content knowledge, technology training, SEL, culturally responsive teaching and pedagogy.

Reflect on lessons learned from distance learning experiences and how to continue to use digital tools to engage students.

Administrators

Reflect on lessons learned from distance learning experiences and develop a plan to enhance schoolwide practices to improve teaching and learning.

Central Office

Revise curricula to include technology and culturally responsive practices.

Transition curriculum to learning management system.
